pupils. The Board of Health got to work as soon as a complaint was sent in by one of the teachers and the building department of the Board of Education responded to the appeal of the principal.

Deputy Superintendent F. A. Collins of the building department of the school board sent Inspector E. V. Brown down to investigate. The principal told him to hurry up and find the source of the trouble as some of the children had been made sick. The Inspector ripped up the flooring here and there and exhausted his ingenuity without success. Then an inspector from the Board of Health went to the school. The health inspector examined the drains and the plumbing. He met with no more success than the other inspector. The building bureau sent down two more inspectors, but the pupils kept dropping out of the classes.

Herbert O'Brien of the local school board was passing the school, when he learned of the trouble. He inspected the building inside and out, but didn't do better than the others. O'Brien went to the police court and got from Magistrate Gilroy summonses for Mr. Winthrop, Mr. Maxwell and Mr. Snyder. The case was to have come up in court next Tuesday.

Testimeny to what Mrs. John Said Taken in Divorce Case.

The suit of John E. Olson, the builder, present owner of the Gilsey House, for a divorce from his wife, Lily, is on trial before Supreme Court Justice Bischoff and a jury, and testimony was introduced yesterday showing what happened when Mr. Olson went to his summer home near Mount Pleasant last summer and found Clarence Howland, a young farmer living near by, in his house.

Mrs. Muriel N. Spancer said she went to Mount Pleasant as Mrs. Olson's guest, but went away because of Howland's visits. She and her little daughter started out to walk to the station and Mrs. Olson followed on foot, begging her to change her mind because she was afraid Olson would have about Howking Mrs. As the suicide note.

She and her little daughter started out to walk to the station and Mrs. Olson followed on foot, begging her to change her mind because she was afraid Olson would hear about Howland. Mrs. Spencer testified that when they were passing a steep incline Mrs. Olson said: "If I thought you would tell my husband anything I would push you down that hill that's what I would do." She said she promised not to tell and that Mrs. Olson then said: "I've fooled John Olson too long to be made an example of now by you." The case was not finished.

Associating With Success

The man whose business and social associates are regarded as successful, high-grade men is always regarded in the same light himself. That's human nature.

Same way in advertising. The medium is the meeting place. And the advertiser who has the foresight to get into good company, to mingle only with high-grade business firms of recognized standing and integrity-that advertiser not only sells his goods, but he is building up for himself a prestige which is invalu-

Men's Spring Suits, Worth Up to $25.00. Special at

If you buy one of these Suits, you may count $7.50 saved. That statement is not made lightly. We expect hundreds of men-good judges of Clothing values—to investigate the claim. We urge them to do so. Every Suit we sell in this $17.50 group represents a loss-and a heavy loss. But we don't stand it. The manufacturer is the unfortunate one business quiet, re-orders not arriving, loans falling due—you know the regular series of mishaps and disappointments that usually forces $25.00 Suits on the market at $17.50.

They are made of high-class worsteds, tweeds and cassimeres in light and dark colorings, two and three button models, regular and stout sizes.

A week ago we advertised Suits at $14.75. You bought them quickly. These are greater bargains than those were.

Youths' $12.00 Spring Suits $0 94 Special at Youths'-14 to 20 years-Spring Suits, made of blue serge or fancy cassimeres and cheviots, the newest patterns, in popular grays, lined with alpaca or serge. Made to sell at $12.00, special $9.94.

Finer quality, two or three button models, worth $15.00, special $12.75.

Our "Waferflex" Derby, $2.74

Our "Waferflex" is an ideal Spring Derby-especially for young men. The favorite model is low crown, broad flat brim.

Made of fine fur felt, gros-grain silk band and binding, imported leather inner band.

It is light, graceful, flexible and self-conformingblack only. Same quality is sold elsewhere at $3.50; our price, $2.74. Our "Waferflex" always gives permanent satisfac-

The New "Parchment" Flex Derby This season we introduce a new FLEX Derby.

It is called "Parchment," and hundreds of them should be sold. Body made of clear nutria fur, which is yielded by the coypou, a beaver-like animal whose habitat is South America; finest silk band and binding. The same quality is sold elsewhere at $6.00; our price

When a clothier strikes out to make high class and reasonable prices meet in boys' clothing-

When he knows by actual comparison that his product is to be compared only with the output of the few first class tailors who will bother with boys'suitsat double his prices-

Is it a wonder a big business comes rolling that clothier's way?

Smart styles, Substantial fabrics, Skillful making.

All three characterize our Norfolk and double breasted suits for boys from seven to seventeen years.
